Has the Voicemail icon on your Android phone been showing a new voicemail notification when there is no new voicemail or any voicemail messages in your inbox? This can be a pretty annoying issue so here are some tips to get your voicemail notifications working correctly again. Restart your phone Sometimes we forget that our phones need to rest too. Keeping your phone on indefinitely can cause some funny issues, especially false notifications, so don't forget to power your phone off every couple of days for a few minutes and let it rest. This will help keep your phone running smoothly. Double check your voicemail You have probably done this a hundred times already, but triple check after power cycling (powering off and on) your phone. If your phone is still showing a voicemail message and there is no voicemail waiting in your inbox then proceed to the next step. Re-enable the voicemail notifications Disabling and then re-enabling the "show notification" option under the voicemail app settings was a wonderful suggestion submitted by Milton (a site visitor) and I liked this suggestion so much that I felt I needed to add it to this guide as one of the first things to try when troubleshooting the voicemail notification on an Android cell phone. To access the "Show notifications" setting in your voicemail application you need to access your cell phones Settings, find and open the Application manager (sometimes located under the "More" tab on many Android smartphones), make sure that all of the apps are showing (you may need to scroll over a few pages if the current apps displayed are under the list of "Downloaded" apps), once you see the list of ALL your apps scroll down and find the Voicemail application, tap to open it and then deselect the Show notifications option. You may get a warning letting you know that if you do this then you may miss important alerts for this app. Press Ok which will remove the checkmark and disable this setting; once it's disabled press the option again to enable it. Just make sure that "Show notifications" is check marked again as you'll want to know when you get new voicemail messages. Then go back to your home page and make sure that your voicemail notification is functioning properly. I suggest leaving a test voicemail and rebooting your cell phone if necessary. If it solves the problem, enjoy, if not then proceed with the advice below. Thanks again for the suggestion Milton! Note: Milton's post can be read HERE. Clean the App(s) This might be a small hiccup on the Phone or Voicemail application itself. A quick cleaning can often be very effective at resolving this issue on your Android cell phone. This next suggestion will reset the settings and data on the application(s) and should not cause you to lose any voicemail messages that are stored on your wireless carrier's server. Note: voicemails should be stored by your wireless service provider and you shouldn't lose any important voicemails by clearing the phone or voicemail app data. Start by Clearing your Phone Application Access your phones Settings (you can do this by going to your phones Home page and then clicking the Menu Key), once your Settings are open find and open the Application manager; scroll to ALL, tap on Phone, and then tap Clear data. Then check to make sure that your voicemail icon is displaying correctly. If it is then enjoy your smartphone and if this does help to resolve your issue and you would like to show your appreciation then don't forget to press the Facebook Like and or Google + buttons below this article and feel free to also leave a friendly remark in the comment section at the bottom of this page. Personal Note: I had forgotten to include this advice in my original post and I want to thank one of my readers by the name of Fred for reminding me of this trick so that I could add it to the article. His comment can be read by clicking HERE. Thanks Fred. Clear the Voicemail Application If for some reason clearing the data on your phone app didn't help then try clearing the Voicemail applications data as well. To clean your voicemail application the steps are very similar to the ones used when accessing the "Show notifications" feature and when clearing the data on your Phone application. Open your Settings > Application manager > ALL > Voicemail > and then this time tap on the Clear data option. If your cell phone is still incorrectly displaying the voicemail notification then you can proceed with the additional suggestion(s) listed below. Leave yourself a voicemail Sounds a little strange I know, but call yourself and then leave yourself a voicemail. Once you check your voicemail, listen to it, and then erase it. After you have erased the voicemail you just left on your own machine (don't use visual voicemail to do this) then check and see if your voicemail notification icon is still showing or if it is now working correctly. Check your applications If you have a voicemail application that you yourself downloaded onto the phone, try and force stop and/or uninstall that application, restart your phone, and see if your android starts working correctly again. This also applies to any applications that you might have downloaded around the same time that you noticed this issue. If you downloaded a game, exercise, health, weather or other application and the notification started malfunctioning then chances are high that it could be that application causing problems. Try force stopping or uninstalling the app (I recommend you uninstall the application), rebooting, and see if it is working correctly again. Factory Data Reset You might have a software bug or even virus on your device and if you have tried the above suggestions and need a last resort then I strongly recommend you backup all of the information on your phone and then reset its information back to its factory defaults. Don't panic! It's really not as hard as it sounds; the most important thing that you will need to do is to back up and save your information from your phone to another source so that you can put it all back on your phone after the reset. If you would like a step by step guide on how to do this I suggest you read How to Backup and Reset an Android Phone. Contact your wireless service provider A factory data reset should fix this issue if it is a problem with the device itself, if for some mysterious reason your voicemail icon is still showing a message waiting and there is no message then contact your wireless carrier to have them do some troubleshooting on their end. If they don't seem to have the solution right away, and you have done ALL the troubleshooting mentioned earlier in this article (especially the factory data reset) then ask them to remove the voicemail feature from your wireless account and then add it back on. This will erase any saved voicemails that you have stored but your inbox will be like it's brand new. You might have to setup your password again but your voicemail should be up and running and working correctly. Don't forget to check it (if you can) while you still have your wireless provider on the phone. If they cannot get it to display properly then they will most likely give you some of the options available when you have problems fixing a phone. Enjoy your working notifications and of course you're working phone. One of the benefits of writing on mobile devices over the desktop is the use of personalized data on mobile devices. Mobile devices over time learn new words and adapt to your writing style. This also helps in improving the prediction results. However, this blessing can often turn into a curse. Since mobile keyboards learn new words every day, they end up learning our misspelled words as well. This can be quite annoying as you would get your misspelled words in your prediction bar. And with time, the word prediction system itself becomes inefficient. If you are struggling with bad predictions and want to omit these misspelled words or even start afresh with no learned word predictions, we have a couple of tips that might suit you. If you are using the Gboard then removing saved words and word suggestions from it is pretty simple. Method #1: Delete from the keyboard Launch the keyboard by tapping on the text field of any app. Once the keyboard opens you can type the word you want to delete. The word may get prompted even before you are done typing it. Long press on the word in the text suggestion bar. You will be able to see a trash can with "Remove suggestion" written above it. Slide the word to the trashcan for the word to get removed from your keyboard. Once the suggestion is removed it will not appear again as a suggestion while you type. Method #2: Delete from Personal Dictionary If you have added a word to your personal dictionary that you want to remove then you can access it in two ways. #1. Through keyboard settings When your keyboard is open you can press the settings icon on the bar above the keyboard. This will take you to the keyboard settings. #2. Through the device settings If you want to access your personal dictionary without launching the keyboard then you need to open your device settings. Scroll down and tap on System. From the System menu, go to Language & input. Tap on Virtual Keyboard. Tap on Gboard from the list of keyboards. This will take you to the keyboard settings. In the keyboard settings, tap on Dictionary. You need to then open Personal Dictionary. You will be shown the languages that you have set as default. Tap on the language dictionary from which you want to remove the word. You will see the list of words saved in the dictionary. Tapping on any word will allow you to edit or remove the word. To remove the word you need to tap the trash can icon on the top right corner. Note: You cannot remove multiple words together from the dictionary. You have to individually delete the words by first tapping on them and then tapping on the delete icon. Method #3: Delete all learned words from Gboard To delete all the words that Gboard has learned you need to clear all the data it has saved. You need to open the Gboard settings either from the keyboard or from the device settings as elaborated above. Once you have the Gboard settings open you need to tap on Advanced. Tap on "Delete learned words and data". You will be asked to enter a number to confirm the deletion. Once you enter the number all the learned words will be removed. Now, tap Language and input. Tap on On-screen keyboards. Now, select Samsung Keyboard from the list of keyboards. Tap Reset to default settings. Tap on Erase personalized predictions. Tap Erase to confirm the action. Method #2: Delete a specific word Similar to Gboard, touch and hold the word you want to delete. You will get a pop-up asking you whether you want to remove the word. Hit "OK" to confirm. That's all. Delete words from SwiftKey Microsoft Swiftkey is another keyboard that is by default available on most Android devices. Method #1: Delete from the keyboard Deleting a word from the text prediction bar is pretty simple. First, you need to launch the keyboard by tapping on a text field. Now start typing the word you want to remove. Once you spot the word you can long-press on it. This will give you a dialogue box asking if you want to remove the word from being predicted again. If you press OK the word will be removed from text prediction. Method #2: Delete all learned words from Swiftkey If you want to remove all the learned words that the keyboard has picked up then you need to first open the Swiftkey settings. For this, you can simply tap on the Settings icon (Gear) on the Swiftkey keyboard. Another way to do this is to go to the device's Settings > System > Language & input > Virtual Keyboard > Microsoft Swiftkey Keyboard. Once the keyboard settings screen is open, tap on Typing. Scroll down and tap on Clear typing data. A dialogue box will ask if you want to continue. Hit continue to remove all the learned words by the keyboard. Delete words from Grammarly Open the Grammarly Companion app on your Android device and tap on 'Grammarly Settings'. Now tap on 'Manage personal dictionary' at the bottom of your screen. Scroll to find the word you wish to remove or use the search bar at the top. Once found, swipe to the left on your word until it exits your screen. And that's it! Your selected word will now be removed from your personal dictionary in Grammarly and it won't be suggested in your suggestions anymore. Delete words from your Android device itself If you want to remove words saved to your device's personal dictionary you do not need to open the keyboard. Open the Settings app on your Android device. Tap on System. Open Language & input. Tap on Personal Dictionary under Tools. Here you will see the dictionaries of different languages that you use on your device. Tap on the language where the word you want to remove is saved. Tap on the word to edit it. Then tap the delete icon to remove the word from your dictionary. This is how you can prevent your device from prompting a word that you do not want to see.
